

As the President of EDI International, Victor also serves as Chairman, and Chief Operating Officer. He oversees the operation of the firm's offices in New York, Texas and California. Prior to that, he founded and served as the President of EDI Architecture (1976 - 2010).

Victor's architectural, planning and management skills have moved EDI to the forefront of planning, residential and commercial design. He was the recipient of Professional Builder and Remodeler's 1990 Professional Achievement Award for his leadership in the design field. As an innovator in the industry, he is respected for his ability to develop planning and housing solutions that address changing social needs.

Victor leads the design of commercial, single and multifamily developments from EDI's award-winning New York City office. He is an innovator in the design industry and is respected for his ability to positively affect the fabric of the communities EDI designs within.

During his career Victor has received over 100 national and regional design awards; has published over 180 articles and projects in such periodicals as Progressive Architecture, Urban Land, Builder and Professional Builder; judged national design awards, and shared his insights as a speaker at over 100 national and international educational and trade conferences.
